CHAPTER 31 ELECTRONIC SIGNATURES, ELECTRONIC RECORDKEEPING SYSTEMS, AND ELECTRONIC MANUAL SYSTEMS

Section 3 Crewmember and Aircraft Dispatcher Records

Source Basis:

- Section 121.415, Crewmember and Dispatcher Training Program Requirements.
- Section 121.683, Crewmember and Dispatcher Record.
- Section 135.63, Recordkeeping Requirements.

3-3031 GENERAL. Principal Operations Inspectors (POI) must determine if the certificate holder's recordkeeping system for crewmember and aircraft dispatcher records provides the necessary documentation to demonstrate compliance with Title 14 of the Code of Federal Regulations (14 CFR). In addition, POIs should review the certificate holder's recordkeeping procedures to determine that the certificate holder's quality control (QC) measures are adequate to maintain appropriate information on the quality of crewmember and aircraft dispatcher performance in training and qualification programs. To enable the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) to determine compliance at any time, the certificate holder must maintain adequate historical data. This section contains information and guidance to be used by POIs when determining the necessary crewmember and aircraft dispatcher records and the minimum retention periods.

3-3032 CATEGORIES OF RECORDS.

A. Qualification Records. In order for a certificate holder to demonstrate regulatory compliance, the certificate holder must retain records that document current qualification and prerequisite qualifications.

1) Permanent Records. Permanent records are the documentation of prerequisite qualifications for the current duty assignment(s). Permanent records also include documentation of the successful completion of training and qualification events which are prerequisites for subsequent assignments. A certificate holder must retain these records for the duration of the individual's employment to substantiate the individual's qualifications. For 14 CFR part 121 pilots, documentation of all training and qualification events completed with the certificate holder must be retained as permanent records so the certificate holder can comply with the analysis process required by part 121, § 121.415(i). (See Volume 3, Chapter 19, Section 14 for additional information regarding the analysis process for remedial training (RT) and tracking.) Examples of permanent records include the following:

- Airman certificate information,
- Aeronautical experience,
- Basic indoctrination training,
- Initial training and qualification,
- Transition training and qualification,
- Conversion and upgrade training and qualification,

- Operating Experience (OE) and operations familiarization (pilots),
- Operating familiarization (aircraft dispatchers), and
- Required pilot-in-command (PIC) OE observation by an FAA inspector.

2) Current Qualification Records. Current qualification records are the documentation of training, qualification, and currency events which qualify individuals for their current duty assignment(s). Individuals must reaccomplish training, qualification, and currency events at scheduled intervals. In order to show an individual's continuity of qualification, certificate holders must retain this type of record until it is superseded by a record of similar training, qualification, or currency. However, for part 121 pilots, records of all training and qualification events completed with the certificate holder must be retained as permanent records so the certificate holder can comply with the analysis process required by § 121.415(i). (See Volume 3, Chapter 19, Section 14 for additional information regarding the analysis process for RT and tracking.)

B. Records of Action. Regulations require that a certificate holder record each action taken concerning the release from employment or physical or professional disqualification of any flightcrew member or aircraft dispatcher. In accordance with § 121.683, certificate holders conducting operations under part 121 must retain this record for at least 6 calendar-months. In accordance with 14 CFR part 135, § 135.63, certificate holders conducting operations under part 135 must retain this record for at least 12 calendar-months.

C. Flight, Duty, and Rest Records. A certificate holder must retain flight, duty, and rest records for crewmembers and aircraft dispatchers to demonstrate compliance with the applicable regulations regarding flight time limitations, duty time limitations, and rest requirements.

D. Additional Records. The certificate holder may need to retain additional records as a condition of special operational authorizations, deviations, or exemptions. For example, the FAA requires the certificate holder to retain a record of successful operation before the FAA can grant approval to increase the Extended Operations (ETOPS) with two-engine airplanes en route alternate time requirements from 90 minutes to 120 minutes. The FAA may require certificate holders to retain additional training and qualification data in order to justify changes in the authorization of such areas as ETOPS, training hour reductions, and operations specifications (OpSpecs). POIs should encourage certificate holders to establish additional recordkeeping for analysis purposes. Certificate holders may de-identify those records not required by the regulations.

3-3033 RETENTION PERIODS FOR CREWMEMBER AND AIRCRAFT

DISPATCHER RECORDS. When evaluating a recordkeeping system for crewmember and aircraft dispatcher records, POIs must ensure that the system has the capability for entry, storage, retrieval, and archiving of all required records in the categories of records for which the certificate holder is seeking acceptance or approval. Tables 3-128A–D provide the minimum retention period for crewmember and aircraft dispatcher records for part 121 operations. Tables 3-129A and 3-129B provide the minimum retention period for crewmember records for part 135 operations.

A. Pilot Records Improvement Act of 1996 (PRIA). PRIA requires certificate holders conducting part 121 or 135 operations to retain certain pilot records for more than the minimum retention period shown in Tables 3-128A and 3-129A. (Refer to the current editions of FAA Order 8000.88, PRIA Guidance for FAA Inspectors, and Advisory Circular (AC) 120-68, Pilot Records Improvement Act of 1996, for additional information and guidance regarding PRIA.)

B. Advanced Qualification Program (AQP). The AQP recordkeeping requirements are similar to those shown in Tables 3-128A–D and Tables 3-129A–B for training, qualification, and currency; however, some differences do exist. POIs should review Volume 3, Chapter 21 and refer to the current edition of AC 120-54, Advanced Qualification Program, for additional information and guidance.

¹In accordance with § 121.1007, these training records must be retained for an additional 90 days after a person ceases to perform or directly supervise a job function specified in § 121.1001.

³In accordance with § 121.411(f) or § 121.412(f), as applicable, the line observation must be completed within the preceding 12 calendar-months. However, in accordance with § 121.411(g) or § 121.412(g), as applicable, line observation completed in the month before or after the due month is considered to have been completed in the due month. Therefore, these records must be retained for 14 calendar-months.

⁴In accordance with § 121.413(a)(2) or § 121.414(a)(2), as applicable, the observation must be completed within the preceding 24 calendar-months. However, in accordance with § 121.413(b) or § 121.414(b), as applicable, observation completed in the month before or after the due month is considered to have been completed in the due month. Therefore, these records must be retained for 26 calendar-months.

²In accordance with § 135.63, these training records must be retained for 12 calendar-months. However, in accordance with § 135.323(b), training completed in the month before or after the due month is considered to have been completed in the due month. Therefore, these training records must be retained for 14 calendar-months.

³In accordance with § 135.63, these testing and checking records must be retained for 12 calendar-months. However, in accordance with § 135.301(a), testing or checking completed in the month before or after the due month is considered to have been completed in the due month. Therefore, these testing and checking records must be retained for 14 calendar-months.

⁴In accordance with § 135.337(f) or § 135.338(f), as applicable, the line observation must be completed within the preceding 12 calendar-months. However, in accordance with § 135.337(g) or § 135.338(g), as applicable, line observation completed in the month before or after the due month is considered to have been completed in the due month. Therefore, these records must be retained for 14 calendar-months.

⁵In accordance with § 135.339(a)(2) or § 135.340(a)(2), as applicable, the observation must be completed within the preceding 24 calendar-months. However, in accordance with § 135.339(b) or § 135.340(b), as applicable, observation completed in the month before or after the due month is considered to have been completed in the due month. Therefore, these records must be retained for 26 calendar-months.
